Why Cancun and the Riviera Maya?

Located on the northeast coast of the state of Quintana Roo, its scenic and landscape beauty around its beaches, the extension and biodiversity of its reefs, its islands, lagoons, cenotes, estuaries, as well as the great variety of flora and fauna that counts, has allowed for sustainable planning, making Riviera Maya one of the most modern and exciting environments in Latin America, as well as being the most recognized Mexican tourist destination on a global scale.

Cancun will bring researchers, academicians, industrial professionals, and all individuals interested in the field of hydrogen energy together with WHEC-2024. Due to its unique location, Cancun is easily accessible from all around the world; mostly by non-stop direct flights. Beautiful nature and fantastic beaches will accompany us during the event at WHEC-2024; which will result in a fruitful conference with practical ideas and action plans.
